Hey man, got a favor to ask. My attorney just saw the interview I did with you and he's kind of concerned about a few things I said (I'd had a few drinks, obviously). Would you mind re-editing, taking down the last six minutes or so during which I talk about indictments, etc? Or, I could give you another interview to replace the whole thing with if you think cutting off the last part might make it all abrupt. Let me know.
